4-year ACT Score Average

The ACT test is the most widely accepted university entrance exam. The ACT assesses high school students' general educational development and their ability to complete university-level coursework. Universities use the ACT scores and SAT scores as predictors of university success.

Percent of ACT-Tested Students Ready for University-Level Coursework

Through research with universities nationwide, ACT established readiness benchmark scores for designated university courses. They established score levels in English, Math, Social Science, and Science that would be predictors of university success. This graph shows what percentage of students were predicted to have success in the following college courses based on their ACT scores.

Sisters and Nebraska Christian students Nattanit (Eunice) and Natnicha (Sophia).

Sisters Nattanit (Eunice) and Natnicha (Sophia) are in their 3rd year of attendance at Nebraska Christian Schools. Eunice, a senior who ranks 3rd in her class with a 3.92 grade point average, will graduate in May. Sophia is currently a sophomore and ranks 2nd in her class, maintaining a 3.97 grade point average. Both girls intend to pursue medical degrees in college.

“I love the smaller class size because it really allows us to interact with the teachers. Much of our learning comes from the teachers and not through memorization. Teachers and students have a very good relationship. The teachers are always willing to help. We are able to have some great discussions with our instructors.” — Sophia

“The trips are a lot of fun. Washington, D.C. was good because we got to see so many interesting sights. The trip to Dallas, Texas, was special because we got to tour Cowboy Stadium. We’ve also visited Houston, San Antonio, and Kansas City. In addition to the trips, we have gotten to attend several Broadway plays and other musical events.” — Eunice

Trips are a vital part of the international program experience at Nebraska Christian Schools. In recent years our students have attended The Phantom of the Opera, Les Miserables, Mary Poppins, West Side Story, and The Nutcracker, along with concerts by Mannheim Steamroller and the Yamato Drummers. The boys have attended NBA games the last two years.

“I have enjoyed living in the dorm. It is a special opportunity to meet and make friends with students from so many different countries. The structure provided by the dorm parents is important in maintaining a good study environment, especially with so many young people being away from their parents for the first time. It is a great preparation for college. In addition to becoming more disciplined, we learn many life skills that we will need in the coming years.” — Eunice
